

SEVERE PANCREATITIS AND ACCUTE
DEPLETED ENDOCRINE SYSTEM

There is a new, deadly disease that is pandemic and as deadly as AIDS. It doesn't look the same. It is more subtle, but it is still deadly.

The symptoms are (1) Constant fatigue (you slowly loose energy and hardly notice it until someone asks) (2) Brain Fog with edges of slight dementia (3) Increasing anger/ decreasing sanity (4) Weight gain.

Little by little the whole endocrine system depletes and you just don't have the hormones you used to have. The pancreas depletes as reflected in the weight gain and it is the key to the slow death. It is forming a special form of lymphoma in the spleen. When the neck gets smaller and weight begins to decrease it is a sign that the pancreas is about to fail. That means death.

As best we can estimate, this started between 2005 to 2007. Because it doesn't look like AIDS or a strong flu or a pox, we don't see it as a threat. Too many write off the symptoms to "getting older". It seems like everybody is feeling this way because we find the rate of infection to be 75% of the population.

Immune systems are more slowly failing than with AIDS, but they are failing. People are getting sicker and more frantic with the loss of immunity. To be sure there are also planetary shifts causing tiredness and disorientation. We find the planetary shifts have masked the existence and gravity of this new disease.
